COME AND SEE US.

HEADQUARTERS REP. STATE CENTRAL COM., MILWAUKEE, June 15, 1884.

The Republican State Central Committee has opened convenient and commodious headquarters on Wisconsin street, near the postoffice, in Milwaukee. All republicans, and especially those of our own state, are cordially invited to call when in the city. All republican papers published in the state, and many of the leading journals of the country, will be kept on file.

Come and see us. H. A. TAYLOR, Chm.
H. C. PAYNE, Sec.

Offices for the democrats "only," is about the only thing the democrats are unanimous for.

When General George B. McClellan was in command of the army, the daily report was "all quiet on the Potomac." Since John Kelly has taken command of the Tammany forces, that report won't apply to Chicago.

The democratic platform need not be very long to state the situation exactly. If the party would say just what it really means, this would be about the size of the platform: "Whereas we are out, therefore be it resolved, that we get in as quick as possible."

The oldest delegate of a national democratic convention is Dr. Uriah Terrill, of Virginia, who is ninety-two years of age, served in the war of 1812, entered politics in Jackson's first campaign, and went first to a national convention as a delegate in 1844, to vote and work for Henry Clay.

The further the campaign advances the more certain it is that the election of the republican ticket is a fixed fact. There are too many discordant elements in the democratic party to give it any sort of a chance for success. Besides that, the Blaine and Logan ticket is booming on every hand. The kicking doesn't hurt it. It booms all the more.

The skill of the democrats at prevarication on the tariff question is up to its usual standard. The leading democratic papers take the position of the old hunter who said he "shot to kill if it was a deer, and to miss if it was a calf." He neither got his game nor saved his reputation, and that is about the way with the democratic leaders on the tariff question.

When President Arthur had re-appointed Eli Murray governor of Utah, the Salt Lake Tribune put as a heading, "At Last, Glory," and enthusiastically said: "Thousands of good men and true," exclaims the Tribune, "will to-day say 'God bless President Arthur,' and will take new heart to work in the cause of right. The news indeed is most welcome, and the skies are particularly bright this morning." It is encouraging to note that there are some in the hotbed of Mormonism who are not afraid to speak out boldly against the evils of polygamy.

Senator Hoar is setting a good example for the independents of Massachusetts. Probably no man in that state is more entitled to be classed among the "better element" than he. Senator Hoar is for Blaine and Logan, and now that congress has adjourned, he will open the campaign in Faneuil Hall for Blaine and Logan The Boston independents have bee making a noise and engaging public attention out of all proportion to their numbers and influence. The republican party still lives, even in Boston, and should let itself be heard.

It is the opinion of Dr. Koch, the celebrated German physician, that the cholera, which is raging in Southern France, will spread over Europe before winter. While the doctor is regarded pretty reliable on cholera, others consider that he takes too gloomy a view of the situation, and should have kept his opinion to himself at this particular time. It is not probable that the disease will reach this country in time to do much deadly work this year. Our government is already showing commendable activity in taking precautions for this nation's safety, and has requested that French mail coming through England shall be fumigated before it is mixed with British mail for America.

According to the reports from the east, and they are reliable, many independents are thinking better of the republican nominations, and are gradually falling into line. On a sober second thought, there are very few old republicans in those states who have fought with the party ever since it blest the country with its birth—that will vote the democratic ticket. They may feel disappointed because Edmunds or Arthur was not nominated, but when the serious question of voting for a democratic president confronts them, they will be true to their principles and the party they helped to organize, and whose grand victories they have helped to win, and will vote for Blaine and Logan.

A Fair Offer.

The Voltaic Belt Co., of Marshall, Mich., offer to send Dr. Dye's Celebrated Voltaic belt and electric appliances on trial, for thirty days, to men, old and young, afflicted with nervous debility, lost vitality, and many other diseases. See advertisement in this paper.

There are 84 presidential post offices in Wisconsin, and under the new adjustment of the salaries of postmasters, the following salaries are paid:

It will be seen from this table that Beloit has been reduced to $2,300, the former salary being $2,800, when Janesville was placed at $2,500. It was clearly an error in the postoffice department as was suggested in the Gazette at the time.

Colonel Vilas, of Madison, chairman of the democratic convention now in session in Chicago, took occasion to say in his opening address yesterday, "For twenty years it,—the democratic party—has been recruited from the better class of republicans and shed off its venal adherents who had gone to the republicans." This is cheering news to the republican party and ought to be very consoling to the democracy. The recruits referred to were too pure for this mundane sphere and their translation to the democratic party has thoroughly unfitted them to gracefully occupy any position except straddle of a good rail fence. The "shedding off of venal adherents" referred to is not perceptable to the ordinary vision. If the democrats survives the heated term, enough "venal adherents" will be left to her to insure a comfortable winter.

The eloquent gentleman in speaking of the late republican convention, said, "An assemblage of licentious politicians recently filled this hall," and after berating the work of the party to the best of his ability, he closes the affair by saying, "soap is their inspiration and ammunition."

This master piece of eloquence before any but a democratic audience would have fallen flat. The republican party lacks wings and possibly some other angelic qualifications, but as compared with the party championed by Colonel Vilas, it has no occasion to blush. The "inspiration" and application of a good deal of "soap," will be necessary before his party ever presents a clean enough front for the country to admire, and if they will try a little of the same material for "ammunition," they will find it superior to mud, which is about the only shell that seems to work in their gun with any degree of satisfaction. The republican party may have a few "venal" democrats in her wake, and the democratic party may be blessed with a small gleam of white republican light hovering over her demoralized ranks. Both parties will survive the shock of the straggling elements, and Col. Vilas with his great reform party will continue to enthuse on the outside as heretofore after the 4th of November.

Its highly concentrated curative power, makes Ayer's Sarsaparilla the best and cheapest blood purifier known.

A Few Answers.

[Wall Street News.]

"What is a sage?"

"A sage, my son, is a wise man who knows exactly when to buy or sell stocks. We bury about a dozen a month in this country, but the supply still equals the demand."

"What is a successful financier?"

"Why, a man who scoops $3,000,000 out of the bank he runs, and drops the sugar in Wall street."

"What is a philosopher?"

"He is a chap who loses his wife's money in buying silver stocks, but increases his own by taking a deal in pork."

"What is a financial prophet?"

"He is a gentleman who states to an interviewer on Wednesday that the times are prosperous and business solid, and on Thursday fails for $7,000,000 or $8,000,000.

Doctoring His Cigar.

What struck me at the Chatham street stand, was a purchaser, who, after buying a cigar, took a vial from his pocket, and dropped on some liquid. I got his explanation:

"I am a cigar-maker," said he, "and in my work I use what are called patent flavors, with which we turn the commonest domestic cigars into Havanas of any desired brand. I happened to want a smoke just now, and hadn't a cigar in my pocket; but I had some La Vuelta Abajo flavor, and so I turned a Chinese cent-er into a genuine Cuban product. Try one, sir?"

I did. Never again shall I smoke an Havana with confidence.

A Literal Interpretation.

[Texas Siftings.]

"What is that invisible power," asked an Austin Sunday school teacher, "that prevents the wicked man from sleeping, that causes him to toss about on his pillow; and what should he do to enjoy that peace that passes all understanding?"

"Go to the drug store and buy some insect powder. Ma sent me for a dime's worth last Wednesday, and we haven't felt——"

Johnny Spilkins would have gone into particulars, if his sister, who is a little older, and has ten times as much sense, hadn't pulled him down.

NAMING THEIR MEN.

The Chicago Convention Has Five Men Before It,

And Nearly Half the States to Hear from Yet--The Candidates Are:

Bayard, McDonald, Carlisle, Thurman and Cleveland---Butler's State "Passes."

Thurman Looming Somewhat as a Man to Harmonize All Differences---His Reception at the Hall.

The Tariff Plank Agreed Upon by the Resolutions Committee--Some Telegrams About Butler.

Proceedings in the Convention--An Impressive Opening--Vilas Takes the Chair as Permanent President His Speech--Opinions and Notes.

CHICAGO, July 10.—Wednesday's session of the national Democratic convention was interesting in an increasing ratio over the first session. The delegates were again slow to arrive. Among the first were John Kelly and Senator Grady, the silver-tonged orator of the Tammany people. Upon their arrival they were asked if they intended to bring up the unit rule question again, and Mr. Kelly said, yes, at the first opportunity, but in what form he could not say. There was a larger audience present than at Tuesday's session, but all the seats were not filled. The weather was still cloudy and cool, and the temperature of the hall atmospherically was comfortable.

An interesting incident of the hour before the gavel fell was the entrance of ex-Senator Thurman. It was interesting from the fact that his reception had a flavor of the reception of Garfield by the convention of 1880. The enthusiasm was marked above that noticeable at the appearance of any other prominent man, although they were all cheered liberally, and the question arose in many minds as the welcome of the Republican convention of '80 was remembered whether that result would be repeated here at this convention.

Another thing that set many people to thinking was the earnest and vigorous protest of the Tammany men against the nomination of Cleveland, which Grady managed to make after a great deal of opposition. He presented the question as to Cleveland's struggle in his own state in a very forcible manner, it must be admitted, and there were many, among the audience at least, who were free to say after the session closed that it might not be the best thing the Democracy could do to nominate the New York man.

There were many exciting passages during the discussion. The most exciting were when the motion to proceed to the call of states for nominations was carried, and when Gunn desired to speak in opposition to the nomination of Cleveland. At these times pandemonium had sway. The audience, as in the case of the Republican convention, was very demonstrative and expressed its approval with a freedom that made it sometimes impossible for the business to proceed. This was carried to such an extent that the chairman ordered the sergeant-at-arms to eject turbulent spectators, and many people predicted that this thing of the audience attempting to run the thing would result in the entire exclusion of spectators from future conventions.

Another thing that created a sensation was the fact that when Massachusetts was called for nomination of candidate for the presidency there was no response. Gen. Butler was present with the delegation, having arrived during the speech of Col. Vilas, the permanent chairman, which speech the cheers that seated the Massachusetts statesman interrupted for a moment. The applause was uproarious, mingled with a few hisses.

A touch of solemnity was given to the opening proceedings by the reverent manner in which the prayer of Bishop McLean was listened to. The reverend gentleman came in with Chairman Hubbard, and stood conversing with him for some moments before the convention was called to order. When the bishop took the stand to make the invocation to the God of the Universe, at the request of the chairman the whole assembly (or nearly so) arose and remained standing until the close of the devotion. It was an impressive scene. There were over 10,000 people reverently, with uncovered heads, listening while the minister of God asked his Master's blessing upon the labors of the convention. The prayer was simple, beginning with "Our Father, which art in Heaven," and closing with a petition evidently prepared for the occasion, which asked the blessing of God upon the labors of the convention, that the proceedings might be tempered by the sober contemplation of the future, so that future generations might enjoy the results of law-regulated liberty, and not have to suffer the consequences of a rash disregard of the eternal laws of God. He prayed that the influences of patriotism might be supreme in the convention, and that all things might be done in it for the welfare of the land and the glory of God.

A solemn hush settled over the throng as the venerable bishop uttered these simple petitions in a clear and well modulated voice, and as the solemn "Amen" fell from his lips the rustle of the delegates was the only sound heard for a moment, until the sharp rap of the gavel again announced that the body was ready for the business of the day.

The Proceedings in Detail.

TERRITORIAL DELEGATES GIVEN VOTES.

The first fact made known to the assembled delegates was the reading of a communication from the committee on resolutions, announcing that they would not be able to report until Thursday morning.

The committee on credentials reported the list of delegates, settlement of contested cases, and resolutions giving the delegates from the territories and District of Columbia the right to vote in convention. This was opposed by Randolph, of New Jersey, but the resolution was adopted.

Then came the offering of resolutions, which were all referred to the committee on resolutions, the latest ones being referred without reading. Many were on all subjects, the most important being: to give the committee of the Irish National league a hearing before the resolutions committee; to advocate exclusion of aliens from ownership of American real estate; in favor of free trade; against employing convict labor; in favor of the eight-hour law; against sumptuary laws; authorizing the national committee to select a chairman outside its own membership; against polygamy; against the acquisition of large tracts of lands by corporations; in favor of making postmasters elective; against the operation of the unit rule in future conventions; in favor of making the presidential term six years; granting the amount of land to be sold by the government to 160 acres to each individual settler; and several anti Chinese resolutions.

Mayor Harrison moved to admit the Veteran association to seats in the hall. This gave rise to a discussion in which it was asserted by a member of the local committee that there were no seats vacant; that more tickets had already been issued than there were seats. A motion was finally carried, however, that more tickets be issued, to be divided equally among the delegates.

PERMANENT ORGANIZATION.

The report of the committee on permanent organization was then made. The name of Col. W. F. Vilas, of Wisconsin, being presented as president, with a list of vice presidents (one from each state), and several secretaries and assistants, and that the secretaries and clerks of the temporary organization be continued under the permanent organization. The report was unanimously adopted.

The chair appointed as a committee to escort the permanent chairman to his seat Messrs. Thomas A. Hendricks, Hon. W. W. Armstrong (Ohio), J. N. Henderson (Texas), W. H. Parsons (Georgia), John A. Day (Missouri), Sparks (Illinois), and Smith M. Weed (New York). These gentlemen having performed their duty, Chairman Hubbard introduced to the convention the permanent chairman.

WILLIAM F. VILAS.

Mr. Vilas began his speech by thanking the convention for distinguishing him by its selection, but disclaiming the honor for himself and saying that it was a recognition of the young Democracy of the northwest, who had fought for many years a gallant but losing fight, but who with their growing numbers would give evidence of their devotion and zeal in the future until their great object should be secured in the restoration of constitutional government.

He then addressed the delegates, declaring the hour was pregnant with great possibilities and that no mistakes must be made; that an assemblage of politicians such as long possession of unlicensed power creates but recently filled this hall with clamor, and it is said to have been too well manufactured to have been the product of infant industry. He said the Republicans had made many promises that were indictments of their own maladministration; that their promises were misleading and the manner in which they were redeemed only led the nation into deeper sloughs of corruption and misfortune. He denounced the opposition in severe terms and said:

THE MOON INHABITED.

Towns, Villages, and Cultivated Fields Can Be Seen.

[Exchange.]

At the astronomical observatory of Berlin, says a translation from Nya Dressen Helsingfor, a discovery has lately been made which, without doubt, will cause the greatest sensation, not only among the adepts in science, but even among the most learned. Professor Blendmann, in that city, has found, beyond a doubt, that our old friend, the moon, is not a mere lantern which kindly furnishes light for the loving youth and gas companies of our planet, but the abode of living, intelligent beings, for which he is prepared to furnish proofs most convincing.

By accident Dr. Blendmann found that the observations of the moon gave but very unsatisfactory results, owing to the intensity of the light power of the moon's atmosphere, which is so strong that it effects the correctness of the observations in a very high degree. He then conceived the idea to make the object-glass of the refractor less sensitive to the rays of light, and for that purpose he darkened it with the smoke of camphor. It took months of experimenting before he succeeded in finding his right degree of obscurity of the glass, and when finally found he then, with the refractor, took a very accurate photo of the moon's surface. This he placed in a sun microscope, which gave the picture a diameter of 55½ feet. The revelation was most startling. It perfectly overturned all hitherto entertained ideas of the moon's surface. Those level plains which formerly were held to be oceans of water proved to be verdant fields, and what formerly was considered mountains turned out as deserts of sand and, oceans of water. Towns and habitations of all kinds were plainly discernible, as well as signs of industry and traffic. The learned professor's study and observations of old Luna will be repeated every full moon when the sky is clear, and we venture to predict that the time is not far off when we shall know more about the man in the moon than as being an agent in English politics.

Tainted.

Chemists of the nation charge the Royal Baking Powder Company with the use of the powerful drug AMMONIA in their Powder; that no article of food should be tainted by this unsafe drug; that it is unfit for appearance in any human diet; that its long continued use in any form will derange the blood; that it is only found in the natural food and drink of man as an accidental impurity.

That NATURE ABHORS and expels it as an excrement.

That in a Baking Powder it has not even the virtue of necessity.

If the charge is unjust, would it not be an act of justice to themselves, as well as a polite concession to a deeply interested public sentiment, to answer the charge? To answer immediately? To answer honestestly? Oily evasions wont do. Oily dignity, oily plausibility, oily non committal won't do. Ridicule won't do. Come forward in a manly way and give the public evidence that justifies its use.

5 Per Cent. of Ammonia.

"I find PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER a WHOLESOME and STRONG combination of PURE MATERIALS, entirely free from AMMONIA, which is contained in almost all other Baking Powders, including the "Royal," in which I HAVE FOUND AS HIGH AS FIVE PER CENT. of this unnecessary drug.

NAMING THEIR MEN.

"The boisterous cry of the drill sergeant—the black list for hesitating, rewards to the willing. That is the politician's share, while from the ranks of those who amass the fruits of others labor, the copious streams of pecuniary profit will summon the booty of sweetened sophistries to the ear of the weak and ignorant. The air is already filled with vapors of visionary schemes addressed to various interests and factions of weak and undeserving men, and some are indulged to expect advantage from the chaotic possibilities of foreign war; others relief or gain for legalized eruptions upon upon the national treasury. The history of the republics will have been read in vain if such a prospect does not alarm and warn us.

"Twice already has liberty sunk beneath the waves of fraud and venality. She has seen her chosen servants, her chosen high priests, chosen by a majority of votes, exceeding all which were cast to elect Washington, Adams, Jefferson, Madison—I think I might add Monroe—displaced by chicane, and her people temporarily enslaved by fraudulent usurpation of their places. She has seen a national election perverted by the stream of money which flowed from gaping wounds at Washington. Can she raise a third time, if again submerged by her enemies? Gentlemen, no patriot here can contemplate contemporaneous events without profound conviction that the duties of this hour rise far beyond partisanship.

"There is one supreme question before us: How shall we most surely rescue the republic? I know you will pardon me for saying it is no time for personal devotion or a personal canvass. No man has the slightest right to our personal preferences, and we have no personal preferences, no personal objections. We weigh as a feather even, against our resolute choice on such a ticket as will certainly unite all friends of constitutional liberty, purity, and reform, in solid array, for the country.

"The hour of peace and concord, the embrace of friends after bitter war, the restored joy of happy liberty and enduring union are the highest honor, the most noble chaplet that ever crowned a soldier's memory. Who dares a scar to bleed again? Who fans a dying spark of enmity strips the tenderest leaves from that laurel leaf of glory. [Cheers.] And doubly wicked he who perils a nation's peace and happiness to serve by such ends a vain ambition."

Of the Democratic party he said:

"More than 5,000,000 of freemen, a greater number than cast their ballots for Lincoln, Breckenridge, Douglas and Bell all combined, compose this patriotic aggregation. For nearly twenty years it has been recruited steadily and constantly from the upright and fearless, who, preferring the rewards of self respect to the allurements of power, have shaken the dust from their feet and departed from the Sodom of so-called republicanism.

"It has exchanged for these the venal and time-serving of its own former possession, who sought the spoils of office where they were to be found. It has received and continually receives new accessions of those who come in the same character, which we have received before, and if there be any who cannot abide its high purposes and fortitude and ability to wait for the culmination of its principles, we are ready to continue the like exchange. It has enlisted and caught the fire of the young manhood of this nation, and the spirit of victory rules its councils and rides in front of its battle. The fatality of blundering has become Republican possession, and the doom of God's award to folly, let us pray, may be theirs. The triumph of the party of the republic's hope cannot be longer stayed.

"A confident expectation may be placed in your wise deliberations. We may hope from your wisdom the first step to be taken, and to see again our nation restored to its real station among the powers of the earth—to see its name, public and commercial, again, as of yore, break the waves of every sea and spread its flag in every sky. We may hope to see the squandering of public wealth cease, justice to take her place in our laws, regulating finance and economy. We may hope to see a democratic people of equality and simplicity and frugality, where happiness may be found."

He closed as follows:

"Gentlemen, in the hard duties before me, I implore your generous forbearance. I stand in greater need of your indulgent consideration by the comparison under which I must suffer with the brilliant services of the distinguished gentleman who has just quitted the chair [tremendous applause] with the well-deserved plaudits of this convention. I pledge you my utmost efforts to administer my functions here with impartiality."

Mr. Vilas was frequently and repeatedly applauded, and his speech was a model of eloquence that is not likely to be surpassed, if equaled, during the sessions of the convention.

NOMINATING THE CANDIDATES.

At the conclusion of the chairman's address Snowden, of Pennsylvania, offered a resolution that the convention now proceed to nominate candidates for president. This was antagonized by Clunie, of California, who declared that the platform should be adopted before the nomination was made. the excitement was great, because it was seen that there was an opportunity to bring up the unit-rule question again. Motions were made to adjourn, but defeated. A motion to lay Snowden's resolution on the table brought the question to a vote of the states. When New York was announced as 72 votes nay, Grady challenged it, and counted the vote cast as taken in the delegation, not as a unit, but the chairman ruled against him, and said that he must accept the vote of the New York delegation as a unit, because the state convention had instructed the delegates to vote as a unit on all questions.

The following is the vote as announced at the conclusion of the call, the question being on the motion to lay Snowden's resolution on the table:

Clunie then moved an amendment to Snowden's resolution, as follows: "But no vote shall be taken on the nomination until after the platform is adopted." Snowden accepted the amendment, and then the motion, as amended, was agreed to.

The call of states was then commenced and those states which had candidates presented them in short speeches, none of which were of a high order of oratory, but all of which brought out bursts of applause at the mention of the name of the candidate.

The first state to respond was Delaware. When the name was called there was an outbreak of cheers, and when quiet was restored George Gray, of Delaware, came forward to the platform, and after describing the character of man the party demanded put in nomination whom, he said, was a man who would make no mistake. His name would still the voice of faction. He would carry every doubtful state, and would make some Republican states doubtful. Enthusiasm would take the place of apathy, and would grow, and still grow, as the leaves were falling, until the dreary November was made ripe and glorious by the pæons of Democratic victory.

The next state on the list with a candidate was Indiana. At her name Governor Hendricks took the platform, and suggested for consideration the name of whose career he sketched, and declared that if he were in the White House no man who would go to see him there would find fault with the candid and frank manner of his reception. He did not speak for himself alone, or Mr. McDonald alone, but for the great state of Indiana, which had instructed her delegates to present Mr. McDonald's name to this great convention. No matter where the Democratic candidate for the presidency lived, Indiana had been always found true, but that fact should not come in judgment against her. They should not say, from election to election, and from convention to convention, that they need not trouble about Indiana, as her vote was sure, but that they must take care (he would say by way of illustration) of New York.

Gen. Black, of Illinois, seconded McDonald's nomination.

ALLAN G. THURMAN

was nominated by John W. Breckenridge, son of the last Democratic vice president of the United States, who (the chairman said) had not been unjustly deprived of his office. He described Thurman as a man who needed no eulogy, whose name was in the hearts of the whole American people; a man who, if nominated, would be the next president of the United States.

The nomination was seconded by Durbin Ward, who said the Democracy wanted an Ajax, with helmet and spear, to thunder along the line and deal death-giving blows to the foe. Allan G. Thurman was that Ajax, in intellect, in courage, in adherence to constitutional law, in the defense of the masses, in defiance of the power of monopolies, in defiance of the corruptions of the age. Mr. Thurman had no peer except Mr. Tilden.

JOHN G. CARLISLE.

When the call of states reached Kentucky, that state, by the voice of James A. McKenzie, one of her sons, named the speaker of the house of representatives in a short speech, saying that in all the essential characteristics of manliness, courage, ability and patriotism Mr. Carlisle was the peer of any great name that had been or would be mentioned in connection with that office. If they had John G. Carlisle at the head of the column, they would win such a victory as was won by the Puritan forces of Cromwell at Naseby and Marston moor.

When Massachusetts was named there was keen interest exhibited. The rumor that Butler would not go before the convention had awaked curiosity to know whether it was true, and the cheers and hisses were about equally balanced when Abbott said Massachusetts had no nomination to make "at this time." The impression is that the Butler forces are waiting for the break if it should be found impossible to nominate Cleveland when they hope to run in the general with a whoop.

Mississippi simply seconded the nomination of Mr. Bayard and when New Jersey was called Corcoran asked if it would be in order to move a recess and was answered in the negative. Carter Harrison wanted to know what should be done if the roll-call lasted till midnight and was answered that parliamentary law would operate regardless of times and seasons.

The next state was New York, and when it was announced there was a great burst of applause which swelled to a roar as Daniel N. Lockwood, of Buffalo, took the platform. The cheers reminded people of those given when Blaine was put in nomination last month, and they bore about the same relation to the applause which greeted other candidates as was noticeable in the case of Blaine. In presenting the name of

GROVER CLEVELAND

Mr. Lockwood said that no man had more veneration for the honored names which had been presented to the convention than he; that there were thousands of young men in the country who were desirous of casting their votes for the Democratic party, provided that the man they voted for represented honest and pure government. He said that Cleveland had been tried in two places of honor and trust, and found to be a man whose rule of conduct was the administration of affairs upon the principles of political purity. His Democracy and statesmanship were known throughout the land. His candidacy before this convention was offered on the grounds of his honesty, integrity, wisdom and Democracy, and that he could insure a pure administration by his fearless and undaunted courage to do right, Grover Cleveland could control the thirty-five electoral votes of New York and take his seat as president of the United States.

Carter Harrison seconded the nomination of Cleveland. After referring to the "fraud of 1876," he said he believed that the mantle of Tilden had fallen upon Cleveland. He scouted the idea of the Irish voting against him, and declared that the Democratic party was the laboring man's friend and that they knew it and would act upon that knowledge.

Richard Jones, of Minnesota, also seconded the nomination.

Thomas F. Grady then took the platform but Manning made the point that the only thing in order was the seconding of Cleveland's nomination. Grady having produced a bundle of papers and evidently proposing to make a speech in opposition to Cleveland. Bragg, of Wisconsin, also made the same point, but the chairman ruled that Grady could go on. He then, in a half hour's speech, declared that Cleveland's nomination would be a very great mistake, and gave his reasons for thinking so, the principal being that he could not, by any possibility, carry New York; that notwithstanding his large majority when elected governor, he had 15,000 votes less than Garfield, and that the labor unions, Anti-Monopolists and others would vote against him, and that no influence could prevent them doing so. He said New York was safe for any Democrat except Cleveland.

Judge Cochrane, of New York, also spoke against the nomination of Cleveland, and advocated Judge Thurman's selection. He paid his respects to Mayor Harrison, and criticised that gentleman vigorously. He asked what assurance the convention had that Tilden would not accept a nomination.

Edgar Apgar, of New York, replied to both the above gentlemen, and made a strong speech in favor of Cleveland.

During this time the audience was in a state of great uproar, and by the time Apgar concluded it was in absolute disorder.

At last a motion was made to take recess until 10:30 Thursday morning, and upon a call of the states on the question the resolution was adopted, and the excited delegates and people dispersed.

What It Looks Like.

"Mentor," of The Herald, holds to his opinion that Cleveland carries the longest pole. He says: "There is no question of Cleveland's ability to get more than a majority. The logic of the situation—the practical politics of the fight—is that the precedent unbroken, save to Van Buren, will remain in this case. A portion of the opposition, however, is bitter and persistent. In the lax state of the preferences of most delegates surprising changes are possible in an hour or a moment. A stampede of the convention to Thurman, Hendricks, Hancock, Bayard or some other "dark horse" might be expected after three or four ballots. But the chances are more than fifty out of a hundred that the ticket will read Cleveland and McDonald. The favorite leads largely and will win, barring accidents.

The Times says: Were it not for two circumstances, the number of thoughtful men believing Cleveland's nomination still a probability, or even a possibility, would have been small indeed, but an outspoken disinclination to side with Tammany and an apparent lack of harmony among the different movements whose success depends on Cleveland's defeat, justified the latter's managers in keeping up their spirits and the claim that Cleveland would win in the end. There were two speeches in the convention directed straight against Mr. Cleveland, which, while making in different directions, created considerable food for thought in the minds of most of the delegates. Grady's effort made them think that Tammany was manufacturing opposition to Cleveland, and that the latter was a good deal of a persecuted saint; but Cochrane's masterly argument set them to thinking, and the doubt that Cleveland could carry New York was stronger than ever in all circles not downright committed to Cleveland, and the arguments against Cleveland's availability which were presented in every headquarters of doubtful complexion by good talkers in the interest of either Bayard, Thurman, or McDonald, were listened to with greater attention than ever before.

The Tariff Plank Completed.

The final outcome of the deliberations of the committee on resolutions was the appended section bearing on the tariff, which was indorsed by every member of the committee excepting Gen. Butler. It is the product of Abram S. Hewitt, Henry Watterson and Maj. E. A. Burke (of Louisiana). Although nothing beyond this has been agreed upon, it is now thought all will be plain sailing when the committee meets to complete its labors:

"That the need of a change in our tariff system is made manifest by the excessive revenue; that since the foundation of the government custom-house duties have furnished its main source of revenue. This system must continue. Under it manufacturing industries have sprung into existence which depend for their continuous prosperity upon the faith and invitation of the government.

"That the change from a bad system to a good system should not be made precipitately, or in any manner likely to injure those great interests, but rather to promote their healthy growth. Enough revenue can be collected from an excise duty upon distilled spirits and malt liquors and custom-house duties upon fewer articles, to support the government, pay the pensions and discharge the interest and principal of the public debt. But, fortunately, the reduction of taxation can be had without hurt to the wages of labor."

The plank closes by declaring that all taxation shall be exclusively for public purposes, and that no more taxes shall be collected than are required to support the government in economical administration.

Telegrams Relative to Butler.

NEW YORK, July 10.—A telegram to Gen. Butler from John F. Henry, president of the anti-Monopoly organization, is published, in which he (Butler) is advised to bolt the nomination of Cleveland. Gen. Butler's reply, which is also published, declares he will "never agree to the nomination of a monopolist."

The following telegram is also printed.

NEW YORK, July 9. To FRANCIS D. MOULTON, care of B. F. BUTLER, Chicago:—Kelly is right. Neither he nor any one else can carry the New York labor vote for Cleveland. Democrats lose if this state fails them. They lose the state unless the city gives them a large vote. Only Butler can give them that. Cleveland's 5-cent-fare, laborer's lien, and twelve-hour vetoes, and his commissioner of labor statistics appointment, will slaughter him here. He polled 15,000 less than Garfield. His only additional strength would be man-tiller Republicans, and they are scarce here. The Irish World interest will be for Blaine, unless it can be for Butler; so will the labor unions.

The Coming Stove Has Come.

THE BADGER STOVE COMPANY !

MANUFACTURERS FOR THE TRADE OF THE

Badger Cooking Stoves and Ranges,

Under the Griswold & Holloway patents. WILL BURN HARD COAL, SOFT COAL OR WOOD. These stoves have been THOROUGHLY TESTED, and their practibility IS FULLY ENDORSED by every one using them. We have now about thirty families using them in this city and vicinity, and refer by permission to each and every one in regard to them.

WHAT WE CLAIM FOR THEM.

FIRST—Novelty of Construction, being a radical departure from old principles and constructions. Nothing like it in the market.

SECOND—Ease of Management, whereby a continuous fire can be kept up as easily as in the best base burning parlor stoves.

THIRD—Rapid and uniform heating of oven and new system of ventilating same; also heating equally all inside holes for cooking purposes.

FOURTH—Economy in Feed, produced by conveying the products of combustion where most needed.

FIFTH—Durability. The Fire Pot being cylindrical, consequently being much stronger, and draft through same equalized.

SIXTH—Cleanliness. Having an extra large Ash Pan, entirely enclosed within walls of stove, and so arranged as to receive all refuse from grate.

These Stoves and Ranges are now on sale in Janesville by John Griffiths, West Milwaukee St., or N. Griswold, 56 North Main Street.

Don't miss examining these Stoves and Ranges, before buying any other, and if on examination the Badgers fail to please, you will find A FULL LINE OF OTHER STOVES at the same places at reduced prices.

Quick Relief!

When a man has suffered from Rheumatism only a little while, and is relieved from his pain, he is happy and delighted. But suppose he has Suffered for more than a third of a century.

Alvin Grim, of Vale, Iowa, writes: "Athlophoros has helped me much. The pain in my limbs is all gone, but some lameness is left yet, and well there might be, for I have been troubled for thirty-five years with Rheumatism."

Mrs. A. B. Baker, of Chicago,

Had rheumatic pains in her back for fifteen years, and Mr. Baker had been the victim of Rheumatism until his head was drawn down over his left shoulder. Mr. Baker writes:

"Half a bottle of Athlophoros made me as good as new. My wife has taken the other half, and has not complained of her back since. She says her back never was so free from pain and ache as it has been since she has taken the Athlophoros."

There are many people who think that because they have suffered so long, and have tried so many medicines in vain, they must "suffer on their three score years." But you see what Athlophoros has done.

However Old your Case;
However Severe your Pains;
However Great your Disappointments,

Try Athlophoros

If you cannot get Athlophoros of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us as directed.

CAST-OFF FINERY.

An Establishment Where Ladies' Second-Hand Wear Is Sold.

How One Woman's Necessity May Become Another Woman's Opportunity—Stylish Dresses for Emergencies.

[Detroit Free Press.]

On Monroe avenue there is a neat clothing and millinery establishment where ladies' "wear" is advertised. The casual observer sees nothing but an ordinary stock of cheap new goods, very neatly arranged, and a pretty Hebrew maiden with a dissatisfied air trying to sell them. A pleasant-faced, gray-haired mother keeps watch within, and a gay, stylishly dressed brother keeps ward without, while the little convent-bred girl learns the value of dollars and cents from the general public. Back of the stock of new goods are a number of immense wooden chests and drawers let into the wall. These can a tale unfold. A word to the wise mother, and she leads you into the rear of the store, and opens one of the chest lids.

This very respectable appearing dry goods emporium is in reality an old-clothes shop, but of the most approved type. The great [illegible] linery of the very best society. "When a fashionable lady goes into mourning," said the owner of the second-hand business, "she sends for me. How does she know me? Why, everybody knows me. I travel all over the country. I spend seasons at Washington, Saratoga, Long Branch and New York. I go to California for my health, and I call on all the nice ladies. I sell them fine point lace and camel's hair shawls, and I take old silk and satin dresses in part pay. Then, when a lady's husband dies, she sells all her colored dresses to me. Sometimes her wardrobe comes to $1,000, and I give her my check for the money. Here I have letters from Canada, from doctors' wives and hotel keepers, wanting to know if I have anything to suit them. I do a big business in Canada. There is no duty on old clothes. See how clean and nice my goods are, my dear; I will not buy from street gypsies and low folks; I buy only from ladies."

"And do you sell only to ladies?"

"Ah, that is different. I sell cheap for cash and money is clean. The people who buy of me are very good people. They are many of them play-actors in the theatre. They purchase second-hand dresses for costumes I had one dress here that was a beauty. It was a peacock blue satin, made up with velvet brocade. It was trimmed with lace and fringe—was a party rig for a Detroit bride. Then she got tired of it and brought it to me. I had a letter in my pocket from a star actress who was playing in Toledo, and it called for a peacock blue satin. I cut a little bit out of the inside of the waist and sent it to her, and she sent me $50 for the dress. I gave $40 for it, but the lady who sold it said it cost her over $100. Next week the actress was here and sent me tickets to the theater. I went with my son. The actress wore that dress in one scene, and the lady who first owned it sat in the box and looked at it with an opera glass. It looked splendid, too."

Dress after dress had been taken out and unfolded during the conversation. Some were individualized by the wearer. One would be slender, tall and shapely, as if it had clad some daughter of the gods; others fair, fat and forty, with an appearance of having strained after effect.

"Do you have sudden calls for these ready-worn dresses?"

"Well, brides from the country, and runaway matches come in to get fitted in a hurry. There are all sizes, so they can always get suited. But nothing goes better than black silk. One black silk dress looks just like another, and if a customer wears such a dress she is not likely to have its first owner recognize it. Now, my dear, don't you often see a lady on the street and think to yourself, 'There is Mrs. So and So,' and when you get up to her it is not her all. It is just like seeing a ghost. Why? Because the clothes were Mrs. So and So's, and looked just like her. Women who could never have a nice dress can buy a silk of me for $20, that cost $75 when it was new, and if they don't tell themselves, nobody will ever know. Sometimes I have really new dresses—misfits that have never been worn. These command a higher price. It is not a good business now. I have been in it right here in Detroit for forty years, but it is not what it used to be. We made money in the war, but there is no money in old clothes now, and the novelty laces have almost spoiled the sale of the real point article. I am going to Washington to call on the senator's wives. They will have some rich clothes to sell now, and they will want laces. Is there nothing you want today? Call in again as you pass by."

Origin of Ammonia.

Ammonia is obtained in large quantities by the putrefaction of the urine of animals.—Encyclopedia Brittannica.

Every housekeeper can test baking powders containing this disgusting drug by placing a can of "Royal" or "Andrews' Pearl" top down on a hot stove until heated, then remove the cover and smell. Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder does not contain Ammonia, Alum, Lime, Potash, Bone Phosphates. Prove it by the above test. It is prepared by a Physician and Chemist with special regard to cleanliness and healthfulness.

DeLand's Chemical Baking Powder is a strictly pure powder. It is made from Grape Cream Tartar and Bi-Carb. Soda only. They manufacture their Soda expressly for it, and as it is put together on chemical principles, we claim it has no equal on the market. Try it! Test it! and you will use no other.

A BOSTON CRAZE.

Remarkable Stories of the "Mental Process" of Healing.

Cures Which Show How Mind Is Superior to Matter—Theory and Practice of the Professors.

[Boston Journal.]

The "mind cure" is called by people outside of New England, a Boston craze. No other city has developed the system to such an extent as Boston, and probably in no other place are there so many disciples of mental healing. Four recognized heads of as many different schools reside in this vicinity, while dozens of practitioners of more or less skill, and hundreds of followers, swell the list of believers. A system of healing, claiming so many adherents, and recognized so largely by many eminent men, deserves at least to be better understood than it is at present by the large majority of people.

THE PROCESS.

The system is a difficult one to explain. Even those who have studied it longest admit that they do not comprehend its full force, and are unable to describe the exact method of the healing process. The process is essentially a spiritual work. It is held that there is a part of us that is never sick, and this part is mentally worked upon so as to control the sick person's consciousness, and this destroys the sickness, for "mind cures matter." A disciple of this school is sick—no, he is not sick, for that is something which he will not admit; he has a belief that he is sick; he then says mentally to the rebellious body: "What are you? You have no power over me; you are merely the covering given to me for present purposes; it is an error to suppose that I am sick; I recognize the great truth that I myself, my individuality, my personality, my mind, can not be sick, for it is immortal, made in the image of God; and when I recognize the existence of that truth there is no room left for the existence of error; it is unequivocally proved that two things can not occupy one and the same place; error can not exist in the same place with truth, therefore error is not in existence, and I am not sick." And the mind, thus utterly ignoring the existence of error, of sickness, keeps matter in a state of health. It is not similar to will power, for will power admits the existence of sickness, but drives it away by the superior force of the will, while the mind cure denies the existence of sickness, and instead of conquering merely ignores it entirely. It is not similar to faith cure, for faith relies on the action of an outside power, the God power, while the mind cure relies entirely on the power, or, more properly speaking, healthfulness, of the individual's own mind.

MARVELOUS CURES.

Many and remarkable cures are said to have been performed by this mental healing process. The practitioners themselves say little about them; they are reticent to an unusual degree on this matter, except when talking to their own followers, and declare that they do not wish to advertise the doctrine in any way. Their patients, however, tell marvelous stories. One young girl, for instance, had been sick for twelve years, unable to leave her room; a lady mind practitioner treated the girl, and in a short time she was able to go out, and now is apparently in the best of health. Another lady, who is only a student in the doctrine, suffered for years with the severest rheumatism. She became convinced of the truth that mind rules matter, and, declaring to herself, "I have no rheumatism; I have only believed that I had rheumatism; how can I, my mortal self, be ill, that is, be in error? I am not sick," convinced herself that she did not have rheumatism, and since then has not suffered the least. This case, like many others, is one in which there is no motive for telling anything except the truth, as the self-curer is not engaged in the practice of mental healing, and is moreover a lady highly esteemed in the social circle where she moves. At Quincy market are a number of market-men who willingly testify as to the results of this treatment. One man said: "I suffered for weeks with the most acute rheumatism, and any one who has had that knows how painful it is; I put myself under the mind doctor's treatment, and he cured me completely."

SERIOUS CASES.

The cures are not confined to such light cases as transitory pains, but are claimed to affect contagious and hereditary diseases as well, in fact every kind of ill to which mortal man is susceptible. One patient had a limb so diseased that it had turned black; three doctors were consulted and decided that it must be cut off, but a mind doctor held otherwise, and after a longer treatment than usual, for the case was severe, brought the limb back to its perfect condition. In Charlestown resides a gentleman whose eyes were covered with cataracts, and who had been told by one of the most eminent eye doctors of this city that he would be blind, that nothing could help him. The patient went to a mind doctor—at that time being so blind that he could not read the signs on the streets through which he passed—and in a few weeks both cataracts had disappeared. Another lady in Medford, after a treatment of 125 sittings, was relieved of an even worse blindness; the cataracts gradually disappeared, and life returned to the eye. Cases of diphtheria, ulceration of the brain, cancer, asthma, indigestion, congestion of the brain, fever, were cured by the influence of the mind. In many of these cases the patient had been given up by the doctors of the regular school; in fact, it was a common saying of Dr. Quimby, the founder of the mind school, that people would send for him and the undertaker at the same time, and the one who got there first would get the case.

THE FUNDAMENTAL IDEA.

The method of treatment is a simple one, and likely to try the faith of the patient to the utmost. It consists in sitting quiet and doing nothing. The practitioner faces the person who believes himself sick, for about half an hour, silently communicating in his own mind the same as he would do in case he himself was supposed to be ill, or else explaining to the patient what the truth really is in regard to disease. That is all that is necessary. Sometimes a harmless outward application is made, merely to give the patient confidence, since the test of belief is hard when nothing is apparently done, but this has no bearing upon the method of curing.

In Boston there are four schools of this system, and all of these hold as their fundamental idea that disease does not come from God, and that he has nothing to do with its perpetuation, but that it is one of the errors of man which can be cured by truth; the application of this truth is not by any faith, but by an intelligent understanding. The schools, however, disagree in regard to later developments, some claiming to be farther advanced than the others. Of the few heads of these schools, one is a venerable gentleman of 60 odd years of age, who was formerly a clergyman for twenty-five years before he visited Dr. Quimby as a patient twenty-one years ago, and following which he left preaching and practiced healing the sick, employing rubbing and manipulating as a part of his system. Another leader, and head of a school, was a patient with Quimby twenty-two years ago. Her assumed title is "Christian Scientist," and her followers bear the same name. A third practices and teaches under the name of "metaphysician." The forth is a pupil of Dr. Quimby, who follows out his teacher's system pure and simply. Besides these four practitioners there are about a dozen others who practice the mind cure as a profession, and who teach to classes of young and old the methods of curing. Generally, free instruction is gived once a week to all who will come.

Stebbinsville.

—We are having plenty rain now, and quite too much for those who have commenced haying, many acres of fine clover lay on the field worthless having been cut previous to the rain.

—Mr. Wilson and family who came from England three years ago and who has resided in Stebbinsville since, leave here on Thursday for that place.

—Crops are looking well and if the weather is favorable the latter part of the week many will commence harvesting.

—Mr. Darwin Dimick, skimmer for Evansville creamery, failed to put in an appearance yesterday. We hope he is not going to quit skimming.

—School meeting came off Monday evening last, and a new "board" was chosen of worthy citizens.

—The 4th passed off quietly here, most of the grown people going to Janesville, the children celebrated with fire crackers, torpedos, etc., and had a huge time all to themselves in the evening, and although there was no captain the little fellows behaved admirably.

Beecher's Bad Head.

For two months in the year Henry Ward Beecher can't preach. In August and September he takes his vacation and endures the onset of the hay fever. And it is, so he says, something terrible and tremendous. A man with hay fever isn't accountable for its actions. He is merely a wild beast—frantic with snuffing, sneezing and headache. His eyes are red and so is his nose. Every nerve in his skull thrills with distress and his head is a fountain of tears. He lives only to fly from seaside to mountain-top in search of relief.

And yet, whether we call this form of catarrh hay-fever, rose-fever, hay-cold or rose-cold, Ely's Cream Balm will cure it. This remedy is simple, pleasant and easy of application. Placed in the nostrils it penetrates and soothes the affected parts at once, restores the impaired senses and creates healthy secretions in cases of the longest standing. You cannot run away from hay fever, but you can drive it from you by using Ely's Cream Balm.

Clinton.

—At the annual meeting of the Clinton high school, held on the 7th inst, Mr. O. C. Gates was elected clerk for the full term.

—Our school of four departments seems to be in a prosperous and flourishing condition.

—Our village board called a meeting for Monday, July 7th, to vote on the proposition of bonding the village for $3,000 to buy a cheap fire engine. 125 votes were cast, 33 in favor and 92 against the project. Another plan for fighting fire is more popular.

—The agent for Blaine's books is canvassing Clinton. The prices are beyond the reach of very many of us.

—There was an emersion at the Baptist church on Sunday evening.

—Rev. Joseph Anderson spent the Sabbath in our village and preached at the Congregational church in the evening.

—Louis Perrins and family are back from Florida, but expect to return on the approach of cold weather.

—The hay crop is good but not quite as heavy as last season. Heavy showers with wind have caused heavy grain to lodge, but not to a large extent as yet.

—Leonard Bronson and wife have recently spent a few days in the village.

—The rain of Tuesday morning caught a large amount of hay out.

A Startling Discovery.

Mr. Wm. Johnson, of Huron, Dakota writes that his wife had been troubled with acute Bronchitis for many years, and that all remedies tried gave no permanent relief, until he procured a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs, and Colds, which had a magical effect, and produced a permanent cure. It is guaranteed to cure all Diseases of Throat, Lungs, or Bronchial Tubes.

Trial Bottles free at F. Sherer & Co.'s Drug Store. Large size $1.00.

Johnstown Center.

—The heavy wind of the other night did considerable damage to crops and buildings in this vicinity. Some hail fell but not enough to do any damage.

—Crops are looking well although corn is a little behind. Tobacco plantations are doing well.

—Some of our young people received the benefit of the heavy storm on Friday the Fourth, and did not get home till morning, and it seems to be an open question how long the Fourth continues, some have not returned yet.

—School closed at the Center last week. The school at Johnstown closes this week on Friday.

—There will be a festival held at the Center on the evening of the 17th, in Mr. E. Butler's yard. Ice cream will be furnished, and it is expected to have some exercises in the evening. The proceeds will go for the benefit of the church.

Andrew Jackson was president in 1830 About that time Downs' Elixir for the cure of coughs and colds was discovered.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Chronic Diseases.

A Special Study for Years.

Dr. F. B. BREWER

Has made Chronic Diseases of the Throat, Lungs, Heart, Stomach Liver, Kidneys, Nerves and Blood.

A special treatment for years. He is not a boastful, ignorant pretender, but an educated physician, seeking to do good, by devoting his talent and energies to the treatment of a class of maladies that have been with him a long and patient study. To be able to treat successfully chronic diseases it requires that a physician should be a sound, thorough scholar in the art of science and medicine generally. He should give his entire time to their study, be thorough in his investigations and have a long and varied experience. Dr. Brewer claims to work no wonders or to do any more than any well educated physician can do, who devotes his whole time to the study and treatment of chronic diseases exclusively, and has had his many years' of experience. For years Dr. Brewer has visited the the places he now visits, and has obtained his reputation by being honest in his dealings, candid in opinions and reasonable in his charges. Those who are afflicted are invited to call, investigate and decide for themselves. It will cost nothing to do so. Address all letters to

BY ALL ODDS THE BEST EQUIPPED RAILROAD IN THE WORLD.

Let it be forever remembered that the Chicago & Northwestern Railway is the best and shortest route to and from Chicago and Council Bluffs (Omaha), and that it is preferred by all well posted travelers when passing to or from CALIFORNIA AND COLORADO.

It also operates the best route and the short line between

Chicago & St-Paul & Minneapolis

Milwaukee, La Crosse, Sparta, Madison, Fort Howard (Green Bay), Wis., Winona, Owatonna, Mankato, Minn., Cedar Rapids, Des Moines, Webster City, Algona, Clinton, Marshalltown Iowa, Freeport, Elgin, Rockford, Ill., are amongst its 800 local stations on its lines.

Among a few of the numerous points of superiority enjoyed by the patrons of this road, are its DAY COACHES which are the finest that human art and ingenuity can create; its PALATIAL SLEEPING CARS, which are models of comfort and elegance; its PALACE DRAWING ROOM CARS, which are unsurpassed by any; and its widely celebrated the like of which are not run by any other road anywhere. In short, it is asserted that IT IS THE BEST EQUIPPED ROAD IN THE WORLD.

All points of interest North, Northwest and West of Chicago, business centres, summer resorts and noted hunting and fishing grounds are accessible by the various branches of this road.

It owns and controls over 5,000 miles of road and has over four hundred passenger conductors constantly caring for its millions of patrons.

Ask your ticket agent for tickets via this route, AND TAKE NONE OTHER. All leading ticket agents sell them. It costs no more to travel on this route, that gives first-class accommodations, than it does to go by the poorly equipped roads.

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect

ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.

HE FEELS LIKE A NEW MAN.

"I have had Dyspepsia, with Constipation, two years, and have tried ten different kinds of pills, and TUTT'S are the first that have done me any good. They have cleaned me out nicely. —The Ancient Order of Hibernians assemble in the rooms of the A. O. U. W., this evening.

—Another delegation of Janesville people went to Chicago to-day to take a look at the convention.

—Mr. John Thoroughgood has commenced the work of building a new residence on North Main street. Mr. George Barrige has the contract for the carpenter work.

—The Janesville democrats are very reluctant to express a preference for a presidential candidate just now—they are ready to hurrah for any one that may be nominated.

—The colored people are making arrangements for a grand celebration in Patten's Grove, August 1st, in commemoration of the emancipation of the slaves in the British West Indies.

—The committee of arrangements of the Fourth of July celebration will meet at Dr. Palmer's office at 8 o'clock on Friday evening. Every member of the committee is requested to attend that all matters pertaining to the celebration may be closed up for final report.

—The home of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Carle, Academy street, Fourth ward, was the scene of a happy gathering of little people yesterday afternoon, the occasion being the tenth birthday of their daughter, Josie Carle. About forty little people responded to the invitation, and their little hostess was the recipient of many handsome presents from her little friends. The party was a joyous one to all.

—Mr. Cone was discharged from arrest last evening by the municipal court, owing to the fact that the warrant charging him with blockading Milwaukee street was issued a little too previous. It appears that Mr. Cone afterwards made satisfactory arrangements by which he should move the building down Milwaukee street to Main, thence to Court and across the lower bridge, and this morning he was allowed to proceed on this course, and this afternoon, at the hour of going to press, the building was near the lower bridge.

—There was a pleasant social gathering at the residence of Mr. and Mrs William Zader, on Milton avenue, last evening, the occasion being the marriage of their daughter, Miss Emma Zader and Mr. Henry Sykes, of this city. Miss Zader being a member of the late graduating class, of the high school, all of her class were present with one exception. Many handsome and useful presents were bestowed upon the groom and bride, among them a large silver castor from the members of Washington Engine company No. 1, the groom being a prominent member of that company. Mr. and Mrs. Sykes enjoy the acquaintance of a large circle of friends in this city, who will extend their heartiest congratulations and well wishes for their future happiness and prosperity.

—The celebration of the Fourth of July in Rockford was the "biggest fizzle on earth," in fact it was such a gigantic and glaring fraud that the Rockford papers now throw the responsibility upon one of its military companies, and call it the "Grays' celebration." The Beloit Free Press sizes it up as follows:—"There was a great crowd of people, but the celebration was a gigantic fizzle. The immense procession which was announced poured out to the extent of three small military comprnies, the Grays, Chicago Zouaves and Beloit Guards, two bands, the Beloit Wheel club, and a few carriages. None of the renowned speakers came to time, the boat race did not materialize, and the pyrotechnical display was no better than was seen in Beloit, and we didn't have any to speak of."

—Yesterday there arrived in this city eighteen head of horses, the property of the Galbraith Brothers, direct from Scotland. There were twelve stallions, two mares and four Shetland ponies, all, excepting the ponies, being young animals, none of them over three years old. Among the ponies is a little colt, weighing about thirty pounds, which is the smallest specimen of horse to be found in this section of the country. The young Clydes are fine specimens, in keeping with the former importations of this firm. They now have about forty head of Clydes, of all grades, at their barn on East Milwaukee street and they can show as large and well formed horses as can be found in the world. The show of Clydes is a first class exhibition of itself, and will well repay any person who wishes to look at fine animals, to step into their large barn and take a look at the animals. The exhibition is free to the public.

—He looked like the rear guard of some Gypsie band as he slowly entered a business place on the west side this forenoon, and as he leaned over on the glass show case to rest his weary limbs, placing his heavy cane upon the counter, inquired of the proprietor where he could find a family of "Latter Day Saints." The question was a stunner—the proprietor had been so busy reading the bulletins from Chicago that he had lost all trace of that chosen band; but another person who happened to be present and who had taken the measure of the pilgrim as he entered the store, volunteered to give him the desired information, saying that the only real member of that society could be found at a grocery house on North Main street. The pilgrim was apparently about sixty years old, rather tall, dark complexion, with a Ben Butler eye on the wrong side of his face. His worldly effects appeared to be tied up in a little red handkerchief. Making sure of the location of the sainted groceryman, he said he was exceedingly anxious to find a "branch" of the society, and started out. A telephone was brought into use and the groceryman informed of the coming of the visitor. He was cordially received by one of the clerks, but failed to obtain the desired information. He was sent to the Gazette office, where he was given a list of all known Latter Day believers in the corporate limits, some of whom he had seen but pronounced them "no good," as they had all "gone back" on the doctrine. He had been informed by some one that we belonged to the order, and was sure we could pilot him to a tabernacle or "branch" society where he could find rest. When we informed him that we had traveled over many rough roads, and was finally convinced that there was no rest this side the pearly gates of the New Jerusalem, a despondent look took possession of his face, and he asked if we too had "gone back" on God's elect people We denied the insinuation, but remarked that owing to the friendly relation existing between us and the mother of our first wife, we were compelled to pay a little more attention to temporal matters even to a slight sacrifice of ante-matrimonial indulgencies; there were so few first class saints in this locality at the present time, it was a little too burdensome to keep up regular or stated communications, and the "branch" had quietly subsided, in fact it had collapsed. The old man was discouraged, and he picked up his little pack and stick and started for the door, remarking that he would go back to the good groceryman across the way, who undoubtedly could give him more information. As he said good day, a visitor remarked that he must have been an awful "masher" in his day, but that he looked badly used up at the present time. The last we heard of him he was making his way towards Monroe, where he understood a Mormon settlement existed.

When the body is racked with pain, and the mind distressed with long suffering from either of those twin diseases, neuralgia and rheumatism, the word "happiness" becomes a meaningless token. But with health restored to the tired limbs and weary frame, life takes on new and brighter colors. Mr. A. B. Davenport, of 367 Fulton street, Brooklyn, N. Y., after suffering for two years from a continuous attack of rheumatism, tried Athlophoros, and now he writes: "I have been enabled to move about with almost youthful activity and to feel while approaching my three score yerrs and ten, that I have a new hold on life."

Safe, swift, and sure to regulate the bowels, are Ayer's Cathartic Pills. Recommended by eminent physicians.

The Busy Bee.

Much has been written and said about the active little insect known as the honey bee, and the verdict was long since rendered that they are more useful than ornamental. And yet there are some people who delight in making pets of bees, and occasionally a man succeeds in becoming so familiar with a swarm as to be able to handle them with perfect safety, and to the apparent satisfaction and pleasure of the hive. The average mortal, however, is content to entertain them at a safe distance with gentle music, skillfully played on an old tin pan, while they stop to rest on a bush after a long flight.

A gentleman in the first ward is the possessor of a couple of well educated swarms of bees; they are, without doubt, the best trained bees in the city. They are not only well behaved around home, but they are good workers, and the little cells of honey that gradually accumulate under their careful management has the reputation of being a little sweeter and a little whiter than any other bee product in the ward. This high state of social and moral cultivation is largely due to the fact that the gentleman has spent a good deal of time loafing around the bee quarters in the middle of the day, not only watching the honey making processes, but giving a gentle hint now and then, which was always received with quiet satisfaction. It had never occurred to him that the business part of a swarm of bees are usually away from home in the middle of the day, and that he was wasting his time and energies on the aged and infirm, and juvenile members of the family. An old bee will listen to good advice, and you can talk to a young bee on most any subject, but a middle aged bee who is obliged to "Improve each shining hour," in order to successfully support the family, is not only troubled with a will of its own but usually possesses business qualifications that it uses to marked advantage as occasion requres.

Our friend of the first ward was made painfully aware of this fact last evening, when in company with a friend, he strolled out among the bees and proceeded to show up their good points. The long summer day had been well improved by the busy little workers and they were all at home and had just settled down for a quiet evening. Stepping up to one of the hives he said, "Now, I will gently raise the top, and you look in and see what a nice lot of honey is made up." As he suited the action to the word, his face lighted up like a full moon, and as the innocent little bees caught sight of it, they evidently mistook the apparition for sunrise or a full-blown sun flower. He was greeted by a very warm reception; in fact, the demonstration was very enthusiastic. To-day the gentleman wears a handkerchief around his neck, because his collars are all too small. The blotches on his face are not the result of poor whisky, but are gentle reminders of the high regard entertained for him by his pet bees.

BLAINE AND LOGAN'S LETTERS.

Logan's Letter of Acceptance Ready—Blaine's Nearly So.

AUGUSTA, ME., July 10.—Mr. Blaine has decided to call in help upon his letter of acceptance. Friday's train will bring Whitelaw Reid, William Walter Phelps, Charles Emory Smith and Stephen Elkins to give it a final review before it is given to the press. It is also thought some changes may be suggested in the course of The Tribune. Gen. Logan has telegraphed to Mr. Blaine that his letter of acceptance was ready for publication, and desired to know when Blaine proposed to publish his, so that he might make his public at the same time. Logan's letter, in addition to a formal acceptance of the nomination, will treat upon the results accomplished by the war, and urge the necessity of maintaining the same in accordance with the principles involved in that struggle.

Purity and Health

NO ALUM,
NO GUANO,
NO AMMONIA.

Peerless Baking Powder.

The Greatest Flour Lifter in the World !

We call the attention of all housekeepers who desire to use a Baking Powder compounded from pure cream tartar crystals and soda, to the merits of our Peerless Baking powder. Did it ever occur to you that the reason Peerless Baking Powder is not attacked in the war of the Baking Powder men, is because of its absolute purity? It stands unequalled and peerless among the host of alum and ammonia powders on the market. All consumers will conserve their health by using Peerless Baking Powder if they desire to use only the best in the world.

Real Estate COLUMN.

BLANCHARD & HALL,

(Successors of B. H. Blanchard.)

We are not land sharks. We use no stool pigeons, or devices to deceive people into buying what they dont want.

We believe in square dealing and sell property on its merits guaranteeing everything to be as represented.

We have an extensive list of farm and city property of all kinds and can offer inducements so strong that poor people can secure homes of us so cheap that they can pay for them, and persons with means can afford to buy on speculation.

If you are rich or poor and want anything in the real estate line we can supply your wants on terms to suit, and we promise not to publish your private affairs to the world, or to any portion of its people if you deal with us.

Come and see us and patronize us and be convinced.

We solicit the patronage of all persons wishing to sell or rent property. If we fail to sell we make no charge. We show property free of cost. Come and make us a visit and take a ride and give us an opportunity to convince you that all we say is true.
